

Encyclopedia sales techniques stir complaints

By RICHARD ZINKE
Brigham Young University Staff Writer

BYU Ombudsman's Office has several calls questioning the practices of an encyclopedia now working in the Provo area.

Practices have been reported to the Federal Trade Commission by H. Hunt, assistant professor of management and consultant. FTC Hunt explained that the investigation of the matter and, if necessary, file a complaint.

Practitioners in the area said they represent Grolier Interstate, Inc., the company which Hunt said he has filed his complaint against with the FTC.

Del Mack, director of university services at the Ombudsman's Office, said Grolier is the company about which his office is receiving complaints from students.

According to Robert Beall, who said he is a field supervisor with the Grolier Company of Kansas City, Mo., his company solicits interviews with students "to explain the various educational activities, functions, and publications of the Grolier Company. In connection with that, the company would like to conduct a national student poll."

The misunderstanding develops when, according to Mack, a salesman shows up at the student's apartment at the time the student thought was scheduled for the national student opinion poll. The salesman goes into a sales pitch which the student had no idea was coming.

Only after the sale presentation do the students see the opinion poll which, according to Beall, questions what the student thought of the encyclopedia and other Grolier material.

Mack said that a few students have signed contracts in an attempt to get rid of the salesman and have then tried to use their buyer's right to cancel. They have found that there was no local address or phone number available in order to contact the company.

Steve Madson, Ombudsman, said that in that case the student should send his cancellation to the Kansas City office. Beall said that a new Grolier office has been opened in Provo on a permanent basis. The address is 224 S. 500 West, Provo. The telephone number is 375-8680.

There are a number of BYU students working with the encyclopedia company now, Beall said. They fill both sales and telephone soliciting positions.

Madson said it was interesting to note that the August 1975 issue of "Consumer Reports" (p. 496) tells of an FTC administrative law judge who issued an initial decision requiring Encyclopedia Britannica, Inc. to stop using certain recruiting, selling, and collection practices.

The judge said, "One play used to gain entrance to the prospect's homes is the Advertising Research Analysis questionnaire. This form questionnaire is designed to enable the salesman to disguise his role as a salesman and appear as a surveyor engaged in advertising research."

"In addition to prohibiting such practices, the judge's order would require Britannica sales agents to present prospective customers with a card stating that purposes of their visit prior to beginning any sales presentation."

"The judge's order is subject to review by the commission," according to the article.

Madson said these practices are similar to those being used by the company operating in Provo, and it would be good for students to familiarize themselves with the approach.

HEW suit unlikely, Sen. Moss tells Y

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is seriously and carefully studying BYU's objections to Title IX regulations, and will reply in the near future, according to Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah.

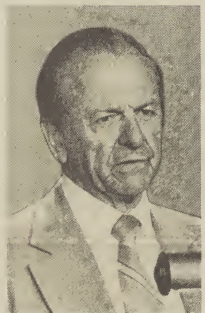

Moss told students Tuesday at the J. Reuben Clark Law School he does not expect a court confrontation on the regulations, which deal with women's rights in education.

"The Office of Civil Rights assured me that HEW will sit down with university officials to clarify and attempt to resolve any differences that exist," he said.

On Oct. 16, BYU published a half-page advertisement in local newspapers, as required by HEW of all schools receiving federal funds, stating its intent for compliance with Title IX regulations.

In the ad, BYU stated that it is committed to equal opportunity for men and women in education and employment, but said HEW is "violating the constitutional and statutory law" in some of its regulations which could contravene the school's religious beliefs.

Moss commended the BYU Board of Trustees and administration for their declaration of equal opportunities for women.

"BYU has no intent, so far as I can see, to be discriminatory in any way against either sex," he said.

"If it should come to litigation, the principles set down by Pres. Dallin Oaks seem to me to have full constitutional validity."

The case "should be tremendously interesting and should set some parameters that we've been looking for," he said.

Asked if he saw further possible conflicts between Title IX and the church, Moss answered, "I don't think it will advance any further. I believe freedom of religion will preserve the rights of the church."

He added that differences between private and tax-supported institutions should be preserved.

"It is important that BYU has called attention to the difference between public and private schools," he pointed out. "It was a timely and excellent statement. I have also read Pres. Oaks' testimony before Congress and I can understand why he is being considered for appointment to the Supreme Court."

Asked if he would support the BYU position if it came to a showdown, Moss replied, "I would take an active role if I am convinced that the BYU position is right."

In answer to other questions, the senator said he supports the idea of recall of elected officials, but the process should be a hard one.

"I think it ought to be relatively infrequent that we remove elected officials from office."

In state liquor case

Indictments may be dropped

By PAUL B. DIXON
Universe Staff Writer

All but one of the charges against Norma Giles Thomas, former Utah liquor commissioner from Provo, may be dropped.

James B. Lee, special prosecutor in the case, filed a motion in Third District Court last week to drop "in the interest of justice," seven out of eight indictments against Mrs. Thomas. Unless Judge Ernest Baldwin denies the motion, Mrs. Thomas will be tried only on a charge of solicitation of gifts when her case comes to court on Dec. 8.

Ronald Stagner, defense attorney for Mrs. Thomas, said that the motion amounted to an admission by the special prosecutor that he "didn't have a case," and said that it was very likely that the motion would be allowed.

The charges that may be dropped against Mrs. Thomas relate to three indictments on which Liquor Commissioner Gerald E. Hubert was acquitted last month, and are connected with six counts of a conspiracy to defraud which turned up missing at the commission stores in 1973.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Fire fighters struggled to encircle two large brush fires Tuesday before threatening winds could fan the flames into renewed firestorms as hundreds of evacuees returned to their homes or what was left of them.

Provo to host Santa Claus in downtown Christmas fest

Santa Claus is coming to Provo Friday to pass out candy canes and take children's Christmas requests.

Santa will be in the Provo Chamber of Commerce Christmas Parade beginning at 9:30 a.m. The parade starts at 400 North and University Avenue and will turn right on Center Street and proceed to the front of City Hall.

Chairman of the Retail Merchants Committee for the Provo Chamber, Bill Shriver said, "After the parade, Santa will be at City Hall to receive the children and pass out the candy canes."

Shriver said the theme of the parade is "Christmas Around the World." Bands from Provo High School, Farrer and Dixon Junior High school are participating in the parade.

Several float entries have been announced, including one from Provo City and Taylor's Department Store.

Any individual or organization wishing to participate in the parade should contact Shriver at Shriver's Mens Store, 16 W. Center Street. There is no cost or special requirement for registration.

The police have requested that no candy be thrown from the parade floats because of the risk of accident to children going after the candy is high.

The Christmas lighting ceremony for downtown Provo will be at 5 p.m. Friday. The decorations at the City Center and the ones strung above University Avenue and Center Street will be turned on.

Music, address, hail Thanksgiving

Tuesday's Thanksgiving Devotional featured BYU's Wind Ensemble, Oratorio Choir and an address by Dr. Harold I. Hansen, professor of theatre and cinematic arts

About 5,000 students and faculty in the Marriott Center listened to the presentations focusing on thankfulness and patriotism. The wind ensemble, under the direction of Newell Dayley, assistant professor of music, played three numbers. The selections included "American Salute," "America," and "Chorale and Hallelujah."

Dr. Hansen then spoke on Thanksgiving traditions and the spirit of Thanksgiving. Tracing the history of the holiday from 1621 in Plymouth to today, Dr. Hansen urged students to be "aware of the blessings that lie in everyday living."

The Oratorio Choir concluded the program by singing two numbers. They sang first the traditional "Netherland Prayer of Thanksgiving," which begins with the familiar words, "We gather together to ask the Lord's blessing." Their final selection was "Ode of Supplication," by Robert P. Manookin, associate professor of music at BYU.

Dr. John R. Halliday directs the Oratorio Choir in Tuesday's Thanksgiving devotional assembly.

Aide says Ford allowed probe of son

WASHINGTON — President Ford authorized a drug enforcement agency investigation which cleared his son Jack, said William Greener, White House deputy press secretary, on Tuesday.

Greener said the investigation discounted a rumor that Jack Ford, a graduate of Utah State University, had purchased cocaine in Salt Lake City in late August.

Leftists take air bases near Lisbon

LISBON, Portugal — Leftist troops took over four air force bases around Lisbon and captured a top air force general today without firing a shot. President Francisco de Costa Gomes declared a state of emergency in the capital.

Gosta Gomes, acting as chief-of-staff of the armed forces, assumed control of all military units in the Lisbon area, ordered broadcast media to suspend news bulletins and banned all street demonstrations, including one called for Thursday by left-wing troops and sailors.

Spain lifts fines on Catholic priests

MADRID, Spain — The Spanish government on Tuesday lifted fines levied against more than 30 Roman Catholic priests for criticizing the Franco regime, and was reported about to grant a wide amnesty to prisoners held for political and labor offenses.

Both moves were described as a celebration of the ascension of 37-year-old King Juan Carlos I, Spain's new chief of state.

Jury seeks guidance in Fromme case

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The jury in the Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme trial asked for new instructions Tuesday, indicating it probably is dead-locked on the question of whether she tried to assassinate President Ford, U.S. District Court Judge Thomas MacBride, responding to the panel's request for help, modified his instructions to allow the jury to consider immediately a lesser charge of assault.

Bundy to be tried? Judge will decide

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Theodore R. Bundy is awaiting the decision of a Salt Lake City court judge on whether he will be tried on charges of aggravated kidnap and attempted homicide.

Judge Paul Gran heard motions and arguments for about one hour in his chambers Monday, the day of Bundy's 29th birthday, and said he would have a decision Wednesday afternoon on whether to bind the defendant over for trial in 3rd District court.

Asst. County Atty. David Youcum, who is handling the prosecution, said the defense asked the charges be dismissed for lack of evidence, and—if not dismissed—reduced.

The public and press were excluded from the hearing Monday, as they were from the six hours of testimony in Friday's preliminary hearing, by request of defense attorney John D. O'Connell.

Bundy is a second year University of Utah law student from Tacoma, Wash., and a former aide to Republican Gov. Dan Evans of Washington. A democratic Salt Lake County Commissioner said Monday that Bundy applied to work for him last January and almost got the job.

Bundy, who was present at the hearings both days, has been investigated in abduction slayings of young women in Utah, Colorado and Washington.

Grant said Bundy did not make a statement during the preliminary hearing.

Copies of President Spencer W. Kimball's Centennial convocation address will be available to BYU students.

The speech will be distributed before Tuesday during religion classes and the law school. It will also be available at the information desks in the Wilkinson Center and the Administration Building.

"It was a great occasion in the history of BYU," said Bruce Olson, assistant to the president and director of University Relations. "Students should have access to this wealth of information and material."

Y student gets delay for plea

The arraignment of a 24-year-old BYU student on a charge of child abuse has been continued to Dec. 5.

Fourth District Court Judge Maurice Harding on Friday ordered the case continued on a motion by the defense. The student is charged with attempting "unlawful force and violence to do bodily injury" to his three-year-old daughter.

Not 'a witch hunt' investigator says

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Utah County attorney investigator says his inquiry into allegations of mistreatment of mentally retarded patients at Utah State Training School will not be a "witch hunt."

Brent Bullock, chief investigator for the Utah attorney's office made the statement in issuing a statement Monday for film, affidavits and records of the television news series on the school.

A Utah legislative committee will also look into allegations made by former and present school staff members. The committee will also look into the impact of the report on the school's pending accreditation.

"If there has been negligence, that is one thing; but has to be criminal intent before any action will be taken," Bullock said.

We may not have a draft, but we still have a need.

We need good people to serve in the U.S. Army. Army life is not for everyone. You get up early. You work hard all day. And you're asked to give 3 or 4 years to your Country.

We won't change that. But, the things we have changed will make the Army more attractive to the type of people we're looking for. We have better educational opportunities. Better jobs. Better pay. And better travel choices.

Yet, we believe the most important benefits to be gained from the Army are still maturity, self-confidence. Things that last long after enlistment's over.

Interim classes offer quick credit

BYU students remaining in the area during the Christmas holidays may complete a two-hour credit class in seven days.

"These classes are offered on Dec. 20, 22, 23, 24, 27, 29 and 30 from 8 a.m. until noon," said Gary R. Bascom, coordinator for the Christmas Interim Class program. "This is a chance for students to obtain an earlier graduation date, or an opportunity to complete some of their general education requirements outside of the regular academic year."

Tuition is $70 per class, and students are urged to register as soon as possible, Bascom continued. A $5 late fee will be charged for registration after Dec. 16.

Early registrations will permit the program officials to plan for classroom requirements and the number of instructors needed, Bascom said. Classes with fewer than 12 students are subject to cancellation.

Registration for the the classes will be held at 242 HRCB in the Department of Special Courses and Conferences, telephone 374-1211 Ext. 3784. Office hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Room schedules and first-day assignments and text sheets may be picked up after Dec. 8 at 242 HRCB.

A $5 service charge will be made for processing a withdrawal from a credit class even though the registration or class has not been completed, said Bascom. No refunds will be given after 50 per cent of the class lecture time has been completed. The student should notify the Special Courses and Conferences office as soon as possible should he decide to withdraw from the program for any reason.

Provo resident confesses to three thefts on Y campus

By EVONE MARTINEZ
Universe Staff Writer

The arrest of an 18-year-old, non-BYU student and her confession, has apparently solved a rash of petty thefts on campus. Carmen Parkhurst, 168 E. 700 North, pleaded guilty Nov. 19 in Provo City Court to three counts of petty larceny.

According to BYU Security

Chief Robert Kelshaw, Miss Parkhurst confessed to several thefts on campus. Investigating officers estimated the value of the stolen property to be close to $2,000. Kelshaw said the officers felt this estimate to be a modest one.

Miss Parkhurst admitted to stealing clothes from apartments and taking personal items from girls dorms on campus, from locker rooms and various academic buildings.

Working on an anonymous tip, investigating officer Brian Erickson obtained a warrant to search Miss Parkhurst's apartment, where several related items were discovered.

Tax bill for N.Y. may go

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — After a week of political haggling, the state legislature appeared ready today to approve a $200 million New York City tax increase it hopes will impress President Ford and pry loose federal aid for the city.

Democratic Gov. Hugh Carey secured what he called "a broad understanding" on the tax package Monday night, with largely symbolic concessions to minority-group legislators and Republicans who had been withholding their support from it.

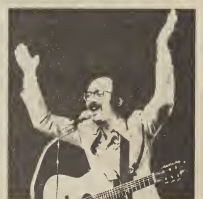

Legislative staffs worked through Monday night drafting the specific legal language of the compromise deal. The tax bills were to be presented to party conferences Tuesday.

The tax package in the legislature is a crucial part of Carey's $6.6 billion plan to avert a default by the city, because it is designed to insure Washington and secure some $2.5 billion in loan guarantees or other federal aid.

It took Carey a full week to negotiate agreement on the tax bills.

The talents of Ballet West and the Utah Symphony will combine on January 6 for the delightful musical "The Nutcracker," that has been a tradition at BYU for over 10 years.

'Mousetrap' celebrates 23 years

LONDAON (AP) — When Agatha Christie's theatrical thriller "The Mousetrap" opened, Winston Churchill was prime minister, there was a war in Korea, and plans were being made for the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II.

The play celebrated the end of its 23rd year Monday — one million ice cream cups, 500,000 cold drinks and 150 tons of programs since its first performance Nov. 25, 1952.

The cast from St. Martin's Theater held a morning party at the Savoy Hotel on Monday to cut a birthday cake topped with mice made of sugar to celebrate the start of the play's 24th year.

"The Mousetrap," which the Guinness Book of Records says has the longest continuous run of any show in the world, has become a London theatrical institution. Impresario Peter Saunders, who presents the play, says he sees no end of the run in sight.

By the end of this year, box office takings are expected to reach almost $6.3 million.

Three and three-quarters million people have seen the show's 9,566 London performances since it opened at the Ambassador Theater.

for over 10 years. This season marks the twenty-first anniversary of "The Nutcracker" in Utah.

Sales to start Monday for 'Nutcracker Suite'

Tickets for the classic musical "The Nutcracker" go on sale Monday at the Music Ticket Office.

According to Dr. A. Harold Goodman, chairman of the Music Department, the show will combine the talents of Ballet West and the Utah Symphony. The story of Clara and the nutcracker soldier will unfold Jan. 6 at 8 p.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall. Tickets will be $3.50 and $4 for each performance.

According to Dr. Goodman, "The Nutcracker" has been a tradition at BYU

Christmas Around World' to spotlight America

Union Square and Independence Hall will provide the backdrop for the 16th annual "Christmas Around the World" concert of the BYU International Folk Dancers on Dec. 11 at the Marriott Center. The 264 dancers will perform to the nation's Bicentennial, the theme for the holiday celebration has become a traditional yule celebration in Utah and are now available in the Marriott Center ticket.

Mrs. Jensen is aided by Don Allen, assistant director, and Gary Hopkinson, technical director. Opening with a Christmas Eve setting, the performers will dance in costumes of colonial days. The dances will include the contra and quadrille, which the immigrants brought from England and France; the running sets and clog dances they learned in the Appalachian Mountains; and the dances of the pioneers who moved into the West. Another section of dances will show the color and movement of the lands from which freedom-seeking people came to the New World. Represented will be the dances of Armenia, Germany, Austria, Ukraine, Japan, Hungary, Lithuania, Israel, Yugoslavia, Poland, Scotland and the Philippines. The program will also present a selection of dances from Mexico, a country which contributed vastly to the culture, literature and place names of the Far West. Winding up the spectacle will be a group of typically-American dances, such as the tap and jazz, representative of the Southern States; the spirit of the mountain folk in the "Saturday Night Stroll," the swing of the 1950s, which will bring memories to many; exhibition square dances of the West; and the finale with all 264 dancers on stage in the staccato rhythms of the Carolina clog. Mrs. Jensen said touring groups of the BYU Folk Dancers are usually made up of about 30 of the most advanced students. Such BYU troupes have performed in almost every European country, on television for millions of viewers in several countries, for royalty and leading statesmen, and in festivals in Israel in the Middle East.

about a greater authenticity to the dance numbers and increases the group's repertoire. After a performance of the BYU dancers in Lincoln Center, New York City, a New York Times reviewer said, "They have folk dances from a dozen different countries in their repertoire and present them with the relentless gaiety of a color spread in the National Geographic."

Turkeys are transported from turkey farms to the processing plant by truck, where they are hung by their feet on a moving rack which takes them to be processed.

The sections of the turkeys which have been marked by the turkey inspectors as inferior in some way, are cut from the turkey and the remainder is sold as parts.

Turkey's tale: farm to table

Photos by Mark A. Philbrick

When millions of Americans sit down to feast on "Meleagris gallopavo," (turkey) dressing and cranberry sauce tomorrow, it's a sure bet that few of them will stop to think of why they are eating this particular large bird or where their meal came from.

In a gallant effort to enlighten the local turkey-eating public, photographer Mark Philbrick paid a visit to the Moroni Feed Company in Moroni, Utah, where many of the turkeys consumed in Provo originate.

Though one of the lesser-known industries, the turkey-raising business, is doing well even in these difficult economic times.

According to L. Blackham, manager of the Moroni Feed Processing plant, two and one-quarter million turkeys are run through his plant each year. During peak months of August, September and October, he employs up to 500 workers who process 60 per cent of those turkeys.

The logistics of processing over a million 22- to 24-pound turkeys in three months are more than mind-boggling.

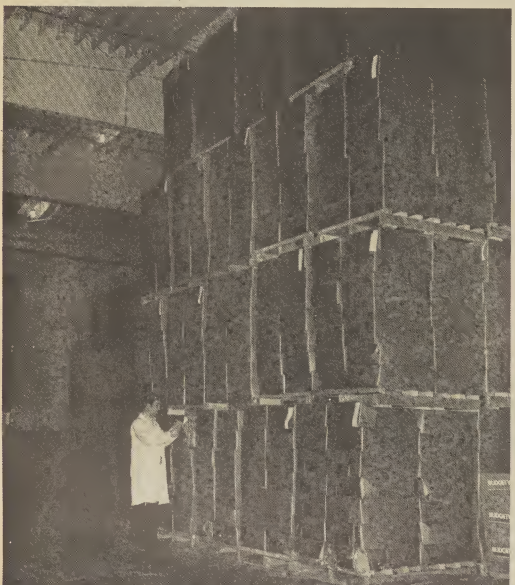

It is accomplished with the aid of many conveyor belts which move each turkey through the stages of throat slitting (contrary to popular opinion, their heads are NOT chopped off), feather removing, cleaning, federal inspection, wing tucking, grading, sacking, counting, boxing and freezing.

Two federal inspectors examine each turkey giving them a grade of A or B depending on the overall quality of the turkey.

After the turkeys are graded they are put in air-tight bags to preserve their freshness.

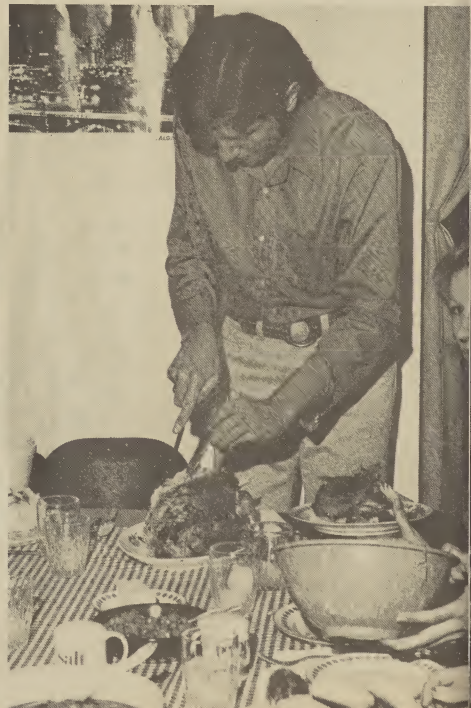

Glen Olsen, personnel director, checks over the inventory of turkeys which are kept in a minus-20-degree room waiting to be shipped to market.

Each turkey is placed on a scale and the weight is then placed on the bag.

A federal inspector examines each turkey, marking all bruises and imperfections. Bad parts are then cut off leaving only the good meat.

Craig Olsen, a senior from Idaho Falls, Idaho, slices a turkey for a traditional festival. Olsen said turkey is one of his favorite foods.

debaters score big weekend tournament

teen BYU students wards in the debate ment hosted by BYU Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Other BYU winners were Barbara Anderson, Lisa Dahlgreen, Marilyn Brick and Teena Mortensen in expository speaking. Extemporaneous speaking awards went to Dennis King, Ed Durney, Bob Skousen and Teena Mortensen; persuasive speaking to Bonnie Gailey, Lesa Bills and Marva Homer and interpretative reading to David Lund, Bonnie Gailey and Camille Bammes.

The tournament, under the direction of Jed Richardson, debate coach, was divided into two divisions. Visiting colleges and universities from Utah and Idaho participated in one division and BYU students in the other.

Ten students from BYU will participate in the Western Tournament in Seattle, Wash. Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. BYU is involved in about 20 to 22 tournaments each year, Richardson said.

Last year the BYU debate squad was ranked among the top ten in the nation, said Richardson.

Mac Haddow, BYU assistant debate coach, presents the overall first place trophy to University of Utah representative Sue Brown at the BYU-hosted debate tournament last weekend.

Measle outbreaks Local man reported in county sentenced

Utah County, which was the site of the measles epidemic last spring, is again experiencing out breaks.

More than 35 cases were reported between Sept. 6 and the last week of October. Donna Beck, administrative assistant at the City-County Health Department of Utah County, said free clinics have been set up in the county to give measles vaccination.

The vaccination is not given to children under the age of one, said Mrs. Beck. Females over 12 years of age are referred to a doctor to receive the rubella vaccination.

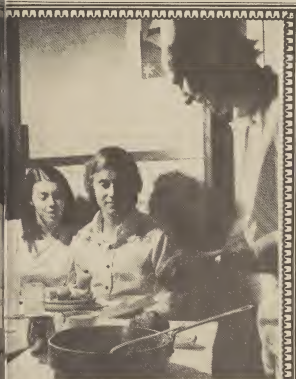

The vaccinations are not given at the Student Health Center. The City-County Health Department, 107 E. 100 South, Provo, offers the vaccination at a cost of $2, said Mrs. Beck.

Utah County, in a 1975 survey of 19 to 21-month-old children, found that 67 per cent had their measles vaccination. This is significantly lower than other comparable populated counties. Salt Lake had 81 per cent; Weber, 82 per cent; and Davis, 75 per cent.

A Provo man has been given a five years to life prison sentence for aggravated robbery.

Fourth District Court Judge J. Robert Bullock assessed the sentence against Kenneth Leroy Mitchell, 39, last Friday.

Police reported $16 taken in the robbery to which Mitchell, the father of seven children, pleaded guilty. A second charge of attempted aggravated assault was dropped.

AFROTC area base to be at Y

AFROTC area headquarters will be located at BYU next year as a result of the election of a BYU AFROTC cadet at 1975-76 Area I Commander, according to an aerospace professor.

Capt. John Patrick, assistant professor of Aerospace Studies, said Cadet Larry Seawright was elected as the 1975-76 Area I Commander of the Arnold Air Society.

Seawright was elected at the conclave, an annual meeting for Arnold Air Society and Angel Flight members.

Thirty-six members of the BYU Arnold Air Society and Angel Flight attended the four-day event in San Diego last week. It was held Thursday through Sunday at the Bahia Motor Hotel. There was a beach party and dance the first night, Capt. Patrick said.

Kristie Woodland, a BYU coed, was selected as the Area I Commander for next year's Angel Flight.

Area I includes Utah, California, Hawaii, Nevada and Arizona. Brig Gen. James Brickley, AFROTC Commandant from Maxwell AFB, Ala., opened the conclave officially Friday with his speech.

The conclave conducts business matters, elects officers, and decides the area headquarters for the coming year.

YOUR SHIP HAS COME IN!

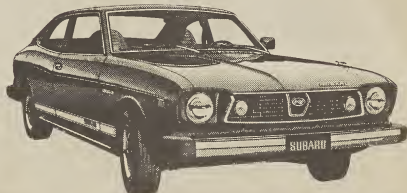

We're unloading the latest shipment of Subaru this week at Harmon's, and you've GOTTA see 'em. Coupes, sedans, hardtops, and the amazing Subaru 4-Wheel Drive Wagon.

What makes Subaru so special? Well, first off, they are engineered by people who have been fighting the economy car battle since long before most of us Americans gave it a second thought.

Subaru's SEEC-T engine burns so clean, it doesn't require a catalytic converter—even in California. This means extra mileage (up to 39 mpg in most models), lower fuel costs since it burns regular gas, and greater overall efficiency.

Subarus are more than efficient, of course—they're also comfortable, well-equipped, and fun to drive.

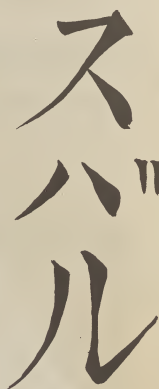

See and drive the Subaru today at Harmon's in Provo.

Grid season to close

BYU's varsity football team closes out its 1975 season in Jackson, Miss. this weekend as it takes on Southern Mississippi.

"Southern Mississippi is an excellent football team," said BYU Head Coach LaVell Edwards. "It will be as tough a game as we've had all year."

With BYU No. 1 in the WAC in defense against the rush, and independent USM a top defensive club in the southeastern United States, Saturday's game is expected to be a hard-fought contest.

Both teams are right in the middle of winning streaks. Southern Mississippi sneared Cal-State Fullerton 70-0 last Saturday, for a 6-4 season record. BYU defeated UTEP 20-10, also upping their record to 6-4.

After losing their first three games, the Cougars have now won six of the last seven. The Golden Eagles have won five of the last six after dropping three of their first four.

The Eagles run a veer offense under first-year coach Bobby Collins, a former assistant at North Carolina. With Jeff Bower at quarterback, he uses running backs Carlos Montgomery and Ben Barry and directs the passes to wide receiver Greg Pieper.

Edwards is looking for his third seven-win season in four years as head coach. The Cougars will be led by sophomore quarterback Gifford Nielsen, who is threatening to set school and conference records in pass completion percentages.

Nielsen finished with 13 completions in 24 tries against UTEP and now has 102 of 168 for eight season games. His percentage of 60.7 so far edges out Gary Sheide's 60.2 mark set in 1973.

Sheide's 1973 average and his 59.8 average in 1974 give Nielsen an even 60 per cent WAC career mark to shoot for in the next two seasons.

Fourteen Cougars will complete their grid eligibility Saturday. Included are offensive starters Orrin Olsen at center and tackle Brad Oates, and defensive starters Stan Varner at end, linebackers Sid Smith and Phil Jensen, safety Gary Shaw and cornerback Mark McCluskey.

Other seniors are split end Tom Dignan, offensive guard Julian Smilowitz, Chris Crowe at offensive tackle, quarterback Mark Giles, tailback Charley Ah Yoo, linebacker Clark Carlson and kicker Mark Uelman.

Southern Mississippi's M.M. Roberts Stadium in Hattiesburg is being renovated, so the game will be played on neutral ground in Jackson's 47,000-seat Memorial Stadium, making this USM's 11th straight road game.

Bruce Crampton of Australia set a Masters record when he registered four eagles two below-par in the 1974 tournament at Augusta, Ga.

The buffer zone between BYU's basketball team and the usual collegiate part of the season could be turned into a man's land this weekend when the Cougars host two foreign teams in the Marriott Center.

BYU will open the season Friday night against Kresimir Cosic and his teammates on the Yugoslavian National team, and the following night tangle with the all-star squad from Australia. Both games are set for 7:30 p.m.

On the surface that may look like a new way for new head coach Frank Arnold and his assistants to glide into the 1975-76 season. But the calibre of the competition is such that there is cause for the Cougars to be worried.

With a young team in tow, and a new coaching staff at the helm, the Cougars could become the victims in this two-game series with touring teams from Yugoslavia and Australia.

Arnold will use the balance of the week to pick the starting lineup for this weekend. Last Saturday's Varsity Preview provided a little more insight into the talent available, but any number of factors will have to be taken into consideration before the starters are selected.

The three players who were starters last year were

Cheesman (6-9), Mark Handy (6-8) and Veryl Law (6-2) —

are all juniors, and each would seem to carry an edge over the other candidates. Freshman Steve Craig (6-2) looked good in Saturday's scrimmage, and there is a good chance that transfers erry Gugat and Thompson could linup.

Runners take 7th in nation; 'highest ever' for Y at finals

The BYU cross-country team came out seventh in the nation when it competed in the NCAA finals at Penn State on Monday.

The highest-ever place finish was the Cougar cross-country team, according to Coach Sherald James. Last year, the harriers finished thirteenth.

Y runner Paul Cummings was first for the Cougars, finishing seventh in the field of 278. He completed the six-mile course in 29:02.

Henry Marsh was second for the Y runners, running the course in 30:05.2. Laman Palma was the third Cougar to finish, with a time of 30:06.4.

Jay Woods, Benton Hart and Richard Reid were the other Y runners, but times were not available for them.

Cummings was honored for the fifth time with an All-American selection. It is only the second time in Y track history that a Cougar has been an All-American five times, and the first time Cummings has been selected in cross-country.

UTEP came out first in the meet, ahead of 39 other teams. Washington State was second, Providence third and Penn State was fourth.

Eastern Tennessee State was fifth. Western Kentucky finished sixth, BYU was seventh and Colorado State came in eighth. Another WAC school, New Mexico, was 15th in the meet.

Craig Virgin of Illinois captured first place, finishing in 28:23.3.

Olsen: His own man

ROD COLLETT
Sports Writer

It has been a way of life for Orrin Olsen for as long as he can remember. Two older brothers, Merin and Phil, play in the National Football League, but right now Olsen is content to be the "center of attention" when BYU's offense trots onto the field. According to Dave Kragthorpe, offensive line coach, Olsen was "the complete athlete" when he was at Orem High School. "When he was in the school, he was a great all-around athlete. He was a top wrestler, won the state finals in the discus, and placed second in the shot put, and of course he was an outstanding football player," said Kragthorpe.

"There was never any question about his ability to play college football," Kragthorpe added. Before coming to BYU, Orrin Olsen was contacted by Stanford and Colorado, but chose BYU.

"Anywhere but Y" "When I was making my decision where to go, my brothers told me to go anywhere I wanted, but not to BYU," said Olsen. "It was hard for me to tell them I was going to the Y, but once I made my decision and told them, I felt great about it."

Apparently Orrin's older brothers, who attended Utah State in Logan, considered Olsen quite a rival. "When he came to BYU, he preferred to make his own reputation, separate from theirs," said Kragthorpe. "Thus far he has done an outstanding job in his own right."

According to Kragthorpe, Olsen was originally going to play on the defensive line, but with the graduation of BYU's only two offensive centers, Olsen was moved to center last year, and ended up winning unanimous All-WAC honors.

Playing philosophy
Concerning his philosophy of playing football, Olsen said, "I think there is a greater satisfaction that comes to an offensive lineman when he opens up the holes and gets the yardage by the run, because it more directly reflects his blocking ability."

On the pass, a greater percentage of the success of the play depends on the quarterback throwing and the receiver catching the ball," he said.

Olsen had high praise for the BYU coaches and their effect on his personal growth. "They do a great job of physically preparing us to get the job done on the field, even off the field they have taken a great interest in my academic development, and the encouragement they give me is great."

Orrin Olsen...BYU center

"They set an example off the field for us, and I think example is more important than words," said Olsen.

As for his future, Olsen has definite plans to try the professional ranks. "I want to go on and play professional football. But right now it is hard to say, I'll have to wait for the draft," he said.

Nationals loom ahead for women's volleyball

By GERRY McKISSICK
Universe Sports Writer

BYU's women's volleyball team took the final step towards traveling to Princeton for the national championships this past weekend by winning the regional championship.

In a highly competitive match, BYU outlasted New Mexico State, 11-13, 15-9 and 15-12, to win the regional crown.

The regional play-offs were divided into two pools of four teams, and then the two top teams in each pool played in a single elimination tournament.

In first-day competition, BYU beat University of Northern Colorado, 15-11, 15-1, Arizona State, 11-9, 15-6, and Northern Arizona, 15-10, 14-9.

On Saturday, the semifinals and finals were played. BYU encountered Arizona in the semifinals, out-playing them 15-3 and 14-9.

According to Coach Elaine Michaelis, before regionals she thought BYU would meet New Mexico State in the finals, and that's what took place.

"This weekend's play was not as strong as last week's, but the team members compliment each other so well they can overcome difficulties," said Miss Michaelis.

For BYU, this is the eighth time in 10 years that the team has won the regionals. "We can plan on a good seed at the nationals," Miss Michaelis said. "If that happens, I think we have a good chance to win it all," Miss Michaelis said.

A team composed of Carrie Malia Ane, Dena Coleman, Karen Curtis, Becky Hannah, Sheila Hilzenderger, Aina Kekauoha, Lae Loo, Terrie McAdam, Joni Rogers, Roxanne Skapple, and Colette Sweetfield is now preparing for a trip to Princeton, N.Y. The National Championships will take place Dec. 11-13.

BYU's highest placing in Nationals in the past has been second, when the Cougars lost to UCLA in the 1974 finals held at BYU.

ABA to face NBA in battle of 'courts'

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Basketball Association players' union is going into court—instead of onto the court—next Monday.

The players organization and their attorneys are headed for Southern District Court in New York, where they will present a seven-count case against the National Basketball Association, the 18 NBA clubs and John Y. Brown, ABA president.

The Players Association, stirred by recent job losses by several of its members because of the folding of the Baltimore and San Diego franchises, and with its Virginia and Utah teams in wobbly financial condition, has filed an application to intervene in a pending suit between the ABA and the NBA.

The ABA players' litigation action had several major points.

One was to seek indemnification from its Denver and New York clubs for damages suffered by ABA players as a result of the Nuggets' and Nets' application for entrance into the NBA for the 1976-77 season. The association contends that Denver and New York conspired with the NBA to be taken into the league.

That move, and actions by Brown, the ABA players said in a statement, has "given rise to our belief that efforts are being made to drive the ABA out of business."

The players also sought to prevent anyone from applying outside pressures on ABA clubs to cease operations without possibly facing legal action.

A third purpose was to insure that ABA players are included in any negotiations involving possible merger with the NBA.

Defending champs win in 'Best Ball' tourney

Averaging 202 for eight games, Christine Warner and Shafter Brown defeated Kathleen O'Leary and Lee Nienajadly 228-195 and 205-169 in the final round to win the BYU Best Ball Bowling Tournament Class A Division.

Brown, who is the Games Center director, and Miss Warner were the defending champions in the contest.

Diane Hart and Allen Rowe won the class B division, averaging 199 in eight games and outscoring Yvonne Estrada and Mark Kelley in the final round.

Brown and Miss Warner went undefeated in the double-elimination tournament.

Hal Brendle, captain of BYU's men's bowling team, and Terri Winters, a member of last year's bowling team, averaged 221 in the tournament, but lost to the Brown-Warner team.

Losing weight? Shun crash diets

By BARBARA DUESSLER
Health Center MD

QUESTION: I have heard a lot about "fad diets" and their effect on the individual. I know that most of them are bad for your health. However, I was wondering about the "grapefruit diet." Is it true that the gastric juices in the grapefruit aid in digestion and, therefore, help breakdown calories faster? What type of diet would you suggest?

ANSWER: The wish to lose weight or at least not to gain any is common to most women and to many men in our Western culture. In response to this wish, many "fad diets" have been advocated in recent years, and, as you say, most of them, if not all of them, are detrimental to our health.

The so-called "grapefruit diet" has been given a lot of publicity recently, especially by Hollywood. This diet consists of certain specified high protein foods, especially eggs, and grapefruits with every meal. There are no gastric juices or any other digestive enzymes in grapefruits and they do not "break down calories faster."

There is nothing magic about grapefruits that would cause rapid weight loss. Grapefruits are mostly water; they contain very little sugar and, therefore, one can eat a large amount of them without gaining weight; but the same is true for many other fruits and vegetables. No one will ever get fat on cucumbers, tomatoes, and celery sticks. However, they do not make a well-balanced diet, either.

Here are my recommendations for a healthy weight reducing diet:

1. Lose weight gradually and slowly. If weight is lost too rapidly, it is stressful for the body and besides, one tends to gain it back rapidly since no one can stay on a crash diet forever. The key to maintenance of a normal weight is the development of proper eating habits, or, in other words, a healthy diet.

2. In addition, we should eat regularly at least three times a day. Many people think they can lose weight by skipping a meal, e.g., going without breakfast. Wrong. What usually happens is that they either eat twice as much at the next meal, or they break down before and load up on sweets—candy bars, ice cream, etc. It has been demonstrated in controlled studies that the same studies of calories divided into many small meals cause less of a weight gain than the same number of calories lumped together into one or two large meals per day.

The food calories that are made available gradually in moderate number tend to be used up in energy production where as a large number of calories made available suddenly, tend to be stored as fat.

So, remember, it is better to eat small meals more frequently throughout the day than to eat one large meal a day. The body requires more calories for energy at the start of a day than at the end. Midnight snacks may be pleasing to the taste, but they do not please our figures.

3. Losing weight does not mean that one has to be hungry most of the time. There are many foods that can be eaten in large amounts without causing weight gain. Included in this group are most raw fruits and vegetables. Bananas, grapes, avocados and potatoes are an exception—their calorie content is higher.

Starch foods also have a rather high calorie content and, therefore, they should only be eaten in moderate quantities.

Area families offer to share turkey with foreign students

International students interested in having Thanksgiving dinner with a local family may sign up in the Reception Center, ELWC, today from 1 to 3 p.m. or the Marriott Center, he said. Game time for both games is 7:30 p.m.

Christensen, assistant advisor of the BYU Classic Tournament will be due by 5 p.m. Dec. 8.

Cluff display ends

The display representing the Cluff years of BYU's history in the Wilkinson Center Gallery will conclude this weekend.

Administrative skills evaluated

Mr. Edward Y. Okazaki, assistant regional director of the Denver regional office of Health, Education and Welfare, interviews Gary Esplin, a second year MPA student during the MPA Management Assessment Seminar held Nov. 19-21. Mr. Okazaki was one of several administrators invited to assess the MPA students in terms of their public administration skills.
